About Stevenson's Cycle

Stevenson's Cycle, located in Wayne, Mich., is owned and operated by Steve Broyles Sr. and his son, Steve Broyles II. Stevenson's Cycle is known in the V-twin industry for their extensive performance and engine work. The most noted example is "Switched," and now "Deuce's Wild", bikes in which they place the front head and cylinder of a shovelhead motor on the rear and the rear head and cylinder on the front. In doing so, Stevenson's Cycle has created what is truly called one of the first, reverse flow V-Twin engines. In addition to "Switched," and "Deuce's Wild", Stevenson's Cycle has received wide spread industry recognition for several other bikes and was the Grand Prize winner of the Biker-Penthouse Biker Build Off. They have also won The Horse Backstreet Choppers Chop Off and several Easyriders bike shows. He has been featured in Easyriders, Biker, V-Twin, The Horse Backstreet Choppers, Freeway, and Wild.
