

SuckerPunch Welcomes New Models to its Lineup

Publish date: Feb 4, 2009

Email | Print | Share | Save | License

An S&S Cycle Sportster-powered racer is just one of the new bikes joining the lineup at SuckerPunch Sallys. The custom bike company is launching a handful of new models during V-Twin Expo, including the Sportster and The Workingman, a bike similar to SPS's Traditional, but with a DNA Springer front end and Ultima transmission. The Workingman will retail for $17,9995.

The custom-OEM is also unveiling a Triumph Thruxton that it created for Fender Guitars. The SPS-flavored Trumpet features a Sara Ray paint job.

In addition Sucker Punch Sally's will be unveiling their two new bikes "Love" and "Hate". These are two prototype production bikes that are sure to turn heads. They will be offered on a limited basis through our dealer network with the idea being that some people want a full-blown production custom. These two bikes, designed by Ami James and Christian Clayton, are sure to be a hit. Christian and Ami will be making appearances across the country at selected Sucker Punch Sally's dealerships. The Love Hate bikes will feature custom frames, custom cast parts, custom cut billet wheels and the new 360 Brakes.

SuckerPunch will be in Booth #2639 and is part of the Limp Nickie booth (#2619).