Sucker Punch Sally's Teams Up

TO CELEBRATE THE 50TH ANNIVERSARY OF A CLASSIC, OLD-SCHOOL experts at Sucker Punch Sally's have partnered with Bruce Rossmeyer to launch the Destination Duo, a Sucker Punch one-off nostalgically styled after the 1950s Duo Glide. Fifty limited-edition Destination Duo models will be available through Rossmeyer's Destination Daytona. Each will feature a commemorative serial number; a numbered motor; a numbered, functional leather pogo seat, and a limited-edition print from renowned hot-rod artist Sara Ray.

Just like 1958: Sucker Punch Sally's new Destination Duo celebrates the 50th anniversary of the Duo Glide.

SPS has also entered into a partnership with Spectro Oils that will see the company become an authorized Spectro distributor and name Spectro as its brand of choice for all motorcycle lubricant needs.

"A motorcycle is only as good as the sum of its parts, right down to the quality of fuel and lubricants used," said Christian Clayton, president of Sucker Punch Sally's. "We take pride in building great-looking, rideable bikes, and by using a premium product like Spectro Oils, we'll help our customers maintain their motorcycles' performance so they spend more time on the road and less time in the shop."

Sucker Punch Sally's is also taking its old-school line of bikes across the pond through a partnership with Tailormade V-Twins Corporation, a Denmark-based company that will serve as the SPS distributor in Denmark, Norway, and Sweden. In addition, Python Choppers has agreed to be the Australian distributor of SPS bikes for all of Australia.
